Help Harvey make it from his home in the Castro to San Francisco City Hall.

Harvey Milk lived in a San Francisco neighborhood called the Castro, where he and his partner Scott opened up a camera store called Castro Camera. Community members liked spending time with Harvey in his store and Harvey liked helping his neighbors. One day, Harvey was asked by his neighbors to run for San Francisco Supervisor. Harvey ran for elected office three times and lost, but he didn't give up. On his 4th try, Harvey became a San Francisco Supervisor.
